

We used to shake hands

Now we have to kiss

Everybody

Like on the continent

Once upon a time

In dark dungeons not made by men

Dragons occupied quarries

You have to be prepared

Boys are trouble

Just peace, quiet, empty

There was a girl called Winter

The attraction turned into a nightmare

The wind screams

Maybe I should get lost more often

Swimming is a really bad option

Y R U NT ANSWERING?

The banoffee pie begs

A faerie!

For a story short as a summer's night

A vacant seat in front of me

She knew he would be waiting

The ocean was so blue

I have no idea. Do you?

Tree houses

Near a picturesque medieval town

Girls are a blessing

And chatter of old voices

Burger, chips, coleslaw

It was the best thing ever

He thinks literature is a joke

It was like living in

I didn't understand the meaning of it

He smiles with his gappy teeth

They were tired

The cushion slips down

He knew what to do

Like, like, like me

Glass of water

Oh well, he returned to England

Laughter keeps you young

Texts on the cutlery by:

Barbara Picot

Barry Hartley

Carenza Heyhoe

Dawn

Gail Aldwin

Glenn Paul

Jade Fordham

Jamie Ashwanden

Joanna Ashwanden

Jo and Mark Jackson

Julie Freeman

Katie Strugnell

Margaret Stephenson

Marie O'Flaherty

Nicola Daubney

Olly Streater- Paul

Phoebe Avery

Pierrick Picot

Rachel Wallis

Sue M and Smurf

The Beards

and those who wish to remain anonymous.

This project would not be possible without:

b-side,

Dawn, Ivan, Kelly

at The Sugar Loaf Cafe

Dorset Library Services

Jo and Mark Jackson

Roger Excell

Sandy Kirkby

Thank you!

Cutlery engraved by:

Roger Excell from James Wilson

Engravers, Poole, Dorset

www.jameswilsonengravers.com

Design:

Ben Dunmore

A partnership project with b-side and Dorset Libraries funded by Arts Council England Libraries Fund.

Supported using public funding by Arts Council England and commissioned by Dorset County Council Library Service and b-side festival 2014.

Literary Cutlery is a writing project by artist Ania Bas that culminates in a series of micro stories engraved on cutlery sets. The sets are in use at The Sugar Loaf Café in Easton, Portland
on daily basis during b-side festival 5th-14th September 2014.

www.aniabas.com

www.b-side.org.uk

AND Public

ISBN 978-1-908452-56-6

Funded by Arts Council England

Commissioned by

b-side festival 2014

Dorset Libraries